

Wrongful Discharge and Employment Disputes:
Halliburton and Kellogg, Brown & Root (KBR)

By Ajay Choudhary & Bruce A. Coane

The law firm of Coane and Associates has handled many employment law cases against Halliburton and KBR and continues to be available to assist current and former employees of Halliburton and KBR anywhere in the world.

If a person hires an attorney and has a claim against Halliburton or KBR, Halliburton or KBR will generally pay the person's attorney up to $2,500 under the Halliburton Dispute Resolution Program. This payment is for the person's attorney's fees and makes it more affordable for a person to hire an attorney. In every case that Coane and Associates has handled against Halliburton or KBR, Coane and Associates has received at least $2,500 under the Halliburton Dispute Resolution Program. This has allowed clients of Coane and Associates to save money with regard to attorney's fees.

Current and former employees of Halliburton or KBR cannot generally have a jury trial on their claims against Halliburton or KBR. Rather, under the Halliburton Dispute Resolution Program, a person's claims against Halliburton or KBR must be mediated and/or arbitrated. Coane and Associates has become familiar with some of the mediators who are available under the Halliburton Dispute Resolution Program.
